PROEM.

In preparing the Catalogue of this Fine Cabinet of Oriental Coins, the first collection of this class as yet offered here, I have adopted the geographical and chronological, rather than the alphabetical classification, following as nearly as possible the admirable arrangement of Herr Adolph Weyl in his catalogue of the Jules Fonrobert collection of Australian, Asiatic, and African Coins, sold in Berlin, 1879, which collection contributed much of its best material to this representative Cabinet.

In this Catalogue I have endeavored to avoid, on the one hand the precise, pedantic, and affected style, which, aiming at exact and full descriptions, fatigues without interesting; and on the other, shunning any exaggerations whatsoever, and the reckless use of superlatives, which so frequently mar what would otherwise be very fair work—I have simply followed the system gradually developed in my catalogues, and most pleasing to American Collectors, a rational arrangement, clearness and brevity in the descriptions, and the omission of all extraneous matter—a plan which has commended itself to all, and is found, as each new catalogue makes its appearance, to have forced itself on the consideration of others.

At the time of the Fonrobert sale, the difficulty of correct descriptions of many Oriental coins severely taxed the abilities of the most learned professors of Oriental languages at German Universities. I mention this, to show, that in spite of my careful comparison of each coin with the Fonrobert and other catalogues of later issue, errors of some sort must have crept into the work of one who does not pretend to be an Oriental scholar. It is also quite probable that the orthography of names of cities and countries may sometimes vary from the accepted English nomenclature, if so, these errors are entirely mine, no one having assisted me by pen or mouth, and while taking all the blame and the little praise this work will find at the hands of Coin Critics, I thus at least avoid the mortification of endorsing and paying for the probable errors of others.

The condition of nearly every coin in this collection is all that should be desired, the general average ranking as very fine. No mention whatsoever of the supposed degree of rarity is made. The metal, when not given, unless of a well-known denomination such as Rupee, Fanam, Drachm, Dirhem, Dollar, Gulden, etc., is Copper; the scale is Metric; the measurement in Millimeters; the weight of gold coins in Grams.

The date, when given, is taken from the coin; if in parentheses it is the equivalent of the Mohammedan year; two dates, (as 1840-47), represent the period of rule, or (1277=1861) the equivalents of the two chronologies. In ascertaining the exact date of issue of a coin it is frequently necessary to add the year of coinage to the date on coin, as ١٢٧٣ = (1273) + ٥ (5 on another part of coin) = (1278) = A. D. 1864.

The following Arabic numerals, as used in the Orient, and from which our figures are derived, may be of interest to Collectors, and facilitate classification:

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	0
١	٢	٣	٤	٥	٦	٧	٨	٩	.

I am greatly indebted to Mr. W. T. R. Marvin for the almost faultless typographical work, in printing what he tells me is the most difficult catalogue he ever undertook.

A Private Exhibit of the Entire Collection will be made to Dealers and well-known Collectors, in the new Art Gallery of Messrs. Geo. A. Leavitt & Co., 787 and 789 Broadway, New York, on Saturday, the 27th inst.; the coins will also be exhibited as usual on each day of the Sale.

Thick paper copies, illustrated with four fine heliotype plates of the principal types of Oriental Coins, for sale, priced or unpriced, at 75 cents each. Those purchasing now are entitled to an extra priced copy after sale.
